no provision for the contingency which has now happened—the centlar ation of the publication of the advertisements in tre Jargas inserted in that paper prior to the appointment of the Julias.

The Julias, it is understood contends that it is still the State paper, and urges this omission in the law of 1848 in support of its claim. It is also understood as urging that the law of 1848 does not provide for the appointment of a printer of the legal notices every two years. Upon the designation of the Julias as State paper, the Julias as only provided several parties having important legal notices in that paper of the countruction they put upon the law of 1848; among the rest. Mr. Saudford, who was party to a suit, relative to which an advertisement had been published for some weeks in the Julias, hence the application for the mandamus. The decision of the Court will involve the whole question of the appointment of a State printer.

RUNCOMBE DEBATE—PREEDIL, WHIG, AND DEMOCRATIC OFINIONS ON THE COMPRONISE, ETC.

Mr. Prieston King, (free soil) of N. Y., expressed his views on the compromise measures, and was histopied to with marked attention. He took the ground mainly that those laws now stand upon the statute book, and what ever the present opinion of the courts or the country may be of their constitutional validity, enough has transpired to show that the courts, as they are now constituted are of the opinion that all these laws are constitutional. The Democratic Convention, in 1848, refused to change its platform, but an outside slavery issue was made by the Nichelson letter, and the democratic party was divided and defeated. The compromise measures were not passed as party measures. They are not an issue between the two parties, organized as A fire occurred here yesterday, destroying property to the extent of $35,000. The buildings belonged to Mr. Dempey, and were occupied as greecy and dry goods stores by Messrs Adder, Hold, Carver and others. If a part of them are particularly presented, ed. entroversy will be revived. If the Fugitive Slave law alone shall be presented, and it is to be decided whether that law shall be continued, modified, or repealed, he should vote to modify or repeal it. And, if the electors of New York are challenged by the issue presented to them to decide at the election whether they are satisfied with, or of approve of that law, in his opinion they will reject the Prosented to them to the platform, as he (Mr. Kray) had no doubt decorate and Mississippi would reject the Prosented to them on that platform, as he (Mr. Kray) had no doubt decorate and Mississippi would reject the Prosented to them on that platform, as he (Mr. Kray) had no doubt decorate and Mississippi would reject the Prosented to the control of the different states of the Union, a sectional issue.
